—By Arthur Brisbane—
bankrupt through another war, or repudiate its bonds as Russia did flatly, or as Germany did with equal effect by making her currency, and consequently her bonds, worthless.

FOR SAFETY, invest in the United States.

THE REVEREND MR. POTTER, of the Unitarian Church, asks, "Who made the devil?" and says that question is Christianity's great stumbling block. "In the early Apostolic Church and in the Dark Ages," says he, "the devil was as important to theology as God himself."

In the first chapter of Job you are told: "The sons of God came to present themselves before the Lord, and Satan came also among them." If God created everything, he must have created the devil also. But should presumptuous men dare to ask WHY that devil was created?

SUCH QUESTIONS land you in the ranks of fagotism. The Rev. Mr. Potter may find himself wondering with finger-why why divine wisdom, foreseeing everything, did not, right at the start, drown the serpent and thus avoid the fall and the necessity of dealing nearly all of the human race? The fewer questions we ask, the deeper our faith.

HERB'S ONE TEST or mind power applied to a young murderer in prison. He was told:

"When men had just come down a chimney. The face of one was clean; the other face was black with soot. The man with a clean face immediately washed his face. The man with the sooty face did not wash his face. Why?"

The young murderer "tested" gave the right answer immediately. "Many average minds won't give it. The answer is that the clean face man, seeing the other dirty, thought his face must be dirty also, and, therefore, did not wash. Three out of ten, at least, will not answer instantly. Try it on your friends."

DR. BARRETT, in charge of Milwaukee's public museum, says children will be taught more and more by "visualization."

"People BELIEVE what they can see," says Dr. Barrett. That's true, and therefore the moving picture is destined to be the greatest power in education all over the world.

A MOVING PICTURE, such as "The Iron Horse," just produced by William Fox, showing the building of the first railroad across this continent, will do more to "Americanize" foreigners than any number of dreary sermons on the Constitution, and "100 per cent Americanism."

To see Lincoln walking in the White House corridors, to see five lions actually pursued by five Indians, and men laying the Union Pacific tracks under the fire of bows and arrows, is real education.

If Mr. Eastman, king of the photographic industry, lives to carry out his plans for educational pictures, he may do more for education than was ever done by Pestalozzi, Froebel, and Rousseau's "Emile" combined.

PROFESSOR FRITZ HABER says a future super-race will live a thousand years. Chemicals will destroy diseases, hold back old age, and in time to come, if you return then, you will live longer than Methuselah.

CAN YOU IMAGINE any worse news? If men lived 1,000 years, with the earth fully populated, as it soon would be, each couple could have only two children in a thousand years.

That would be birth control on a scale not hitherto planned. It would deprive the human race of its greatest pleasure and inspiration, the care and study of young children.

IMAGINE A COUPLE aged 1,000, with a daughter 950 years old and a son 848 years old? Rather a dreary household. Continued on Page 25, Column 6.

CONFESSES

Poisoned Husband, Being Infatuated With Minister Who Killed Wife.

Mount Vernon, Ill., Sept. 23.—After a long vigil, Mrs. Elsie Sweetin confessed today that she was implicated with the Rev. Lawrence M. Hight of Ina in the plot to poison her husband and Mrs. Hight in order that she and the minister could be married, thus confirming the confession made yesterday by Hight.

A short time after Mrs. Sweetin had made her confession the crowd around the jail became so threatening that she was secretly taken to the county jail at Belleville to prevent any possibility of mob violence. Hight was removed to the jail at Salem.

TEXT OF CONFESSION.
The text of the confession signed by Mrs. Sweetin follows:
"The first time that I noticed that Lawrence M. Hight had any feeling of affection for me was in April, 1921. My husband, for some time, had treated me without affection."

"Rev. Hight continued his advances and I finally discovered that I returned his affection. About three months ago he suggested that he give me some poison to give to my husband and he would do the same to his wife."

"At first I was horrified, but he talked so plausibly and I had such confidence in him that it seemed to me to be right to do it. We then finally agreed that I was to administer poison to my husband, Wilford Sweetin, and, for some time, had treated me without affection."

"When a week or two later my husband was hurt in the mine, Lawrence Hight gave me a paper package, which he told me contained poison, and he told me to give some of it to Wilford in any way I could."

"Wilford was hurt in the mine on the night of July 14, and the following day we went to Benton and went to a drug store and got some cyanide and soda water, and on the way home I gave Wilford my husband some chocolate candy, in which I had mixed some of the poison."

"He became very ill and seemed to be getting better, and on Tuesday I gave him more poison in a chocolate candy."

Widow Tells of Her Guilt
"EVERY time the Rev. Mr. Hight came to the house he encouraged me to give my husband more poison. Until I became infatuated with him I had led a blameless life and had always been a true wife and mother."—From the confession of Mrs. Elsie Sweetin.

MRS. ELSIE SWEETIN
She has confessed, after hours of grilling, that she gave her husband arsenic which had been secured for her by the Rev. Lawrence M. Hight. Mrs. Sweetin and the minister planned to marry, she says.

Pals of Gunman Wright Said to Have Been in House During Duel

Two alleged associates of "Pals" of George Wright, East Boston two-gun bad man who killed one policeman and wounded another in a retail battle were arrested by the police today as Wright lay dying in the City Hospital.

Wright, fatally wounded Saturday night at the East Boston station, arrested John J. Donnelly, twenty-two, of No. 22 Liverpool street, and Michael Molloy, thirty, of No. 23 Walnut street, Cambridge, through the back of the first four bullets into the gunman's head.

Today Special Officers Donnelly and Donnelly of the East Boston station, arrested John J. Donnelly, twenty-two, of No. 22 Liverpool street, and Michael Molloy, thirty, of No. 23 Walnut street, Cambridge, through the back of the first four bullets into the gunman's head.

These two, with a third man in custody, are alleged to be accessories in the auto theft which led to the murder of William A. Wright, and they are charged to have been in the building when the fatal shooting of William A. Wright took place.

Wright, who has formerly been charged with the murder of Patrolman Matroni, has two bullet wounds in the abdomen and one in each arm. Hospital physicians say that he can not recover.

James Garman, twenty-two years old, of No. 10 Chestnut street, Chelsea, has been arrested by Special Officer George Finn of the Chelsea police, charged as an accessory to the murder of Patrolman Matroni, charged in the police, Matroni was in the building on Liverpool street, East Boston, when the fatal shooting of Patrolman Matroni took place.

Another development is the recovery of the automobile of Dr. Anthony T. Carney, slain in Essex street Thursday. Special Officers Donnelly and Donnelly of East Boston, charged in the police, Matroni was in the building on Liverpool street, East Boston, when the fatal shooting of Patrolman Matroni took place.

When the police reported that they found Robert Carney, slain Thursday night, in the neighborhood of the off-tacker ship, Captain James Gomez of New Bedford, of the tanker, reported today that the ship had been rammed by the tanker.

Judge Says There'll Be a New Get-Rich-Quick Scheme Along in a Few Years

There will be another get-rich-quick sensation of Ponzi proportions within the next five years, Federal Judge Anderson predicted today.

"It is amazing the number of fools there are in the world," he added. "When one crop dies out another springs up."

Some people won't believe the simple rules of success. The scheme of all these get-rich-quick confidence men is to get D and R, and they lack part of the winning to A and B, in order to attract customers at the start.

JUDGES RINGS.
Judge Anderson was disposing of the case of John A. Carney, who withdrew his money from the Ponzi enterprise a week before the crash. The trustee in bankruptcy was trying to force Carney to turn the money into the general Ponzi fund.

"I cannot see where this man saw Ponzi was honest, so that he drew his money out as he did," said the judge.

"In this and all other cases," he said, "the money cannot be returned by the trustee."

Attorney Win for the trustee, suggested that "the book be given a return."

"BORN EVERY DAY."
I want to know, Judge Anderson, "There is an end to the world," they are born every day."

The judge said he did not wish to be deceived in any way. The Ponzi scheme is to be sold with the expense of the cases. The judge said he did not wish to be deceived in any way. The Ponzi scheme is to be sold with the expense of the cases.

1/2-HOUR EXTRA
STRIKE

Somehow discovered today that the Russell School in Cambridge was to have its regular session today, but an hour earlier than the Haggerty school—and the Russell school again began yesterday and a sudden death.

All but three of the forty striking schoolboys and girls, who were well backed up by their classmates, were in their new seats today, ready to learn the reason for the strike of the teachers and kindred exciting matters.

The strike was precipitated, because of crowded conditions, fifty of the Haggerty school students were asked to transfer to the Russell school, which was to have its regular session today. This developed the absence of eighteen in the ranks.

When the forty names were posted, the captain of the Haggerty ball team discovered that two of his were about to move out with the rest. He hurried down to M. F. Fitzgerald, superintendent of Cambridge schools, and asked that he be assigned to the Haggerty school of good out Haggerty.

The transfer was agreed. But then, believing the discrimination was unjust, eighteen Haggerty parents kept their offspring out of school, effectively wrecking the transfer.

Then someone observed that the Russell school made its transfer last night before the Haggerty school. Today, when the transfer had been effected, only three of the forty were missing.

They may have turned out as one way to strike and could go back, or they may be not through natural causes.

The strike is over, at any rate.

and carrying a pair of pants, stepped into the hallway from another room. "There him," said Dr. Carcena and Patrolman Matroni eloped his hand on Wright's shoulder. "Ours a minute to get my coat and I'll go with you," countered the woman and the patrolman was arrested. He walked along the narrow hall to a door which led to the cellar, dropped his pants on the top step and bolted downstairs. Patrolman Matroni led the chase to the cellar.

FIRE POINT-BLANK

When Wright reached the foot of the stairs he turned and fired point-blank at the oncoming officer, the bullet drilling Matroni in the pit of the stomach. The gunman then emptied his revolver, one of the four bullets striking Patrolman Duggan's shin.

"He's got me Tom—and got me right," groaned Matroni and sank on the stairs.

Will Ask Legislature to Stop Sale of Firearms

The shooting of two policemen in East Boston was used by City Councilman James T. Moriarty as an additional argument in favor of his order calling for legislation restricting the sale of firearms.

The order, which was passed by the City Council, provided that the mayor be requested to petition the General Court at its next session for legislation to prevent the sale of revolvers, pistols and other small firearms within the limits of the state, except to policemen and members of the militia.

Moriarty amended his order so as to provide for the request by the mayor that the police commissioner revoke all permits to carry firearms, but later withdrew the amendment after it had been opposed by Councilmen Watson and Lane.

CAPTURE TRIO AFTER SOUTH END CHASE

Policemen in Commandeered Car Locate a Doorway Robbery Suspect

After a chase over most of the South End, Patrolman McDonald and Sergeant captured today David P. Boyle, Thomas J. Kelley and Robert P. Swenson, all charged with assault and robbery.

Hearing shouts for help, the officers found John Hart standing in a doorway on Columbus avenue, near Tremont street. He said he had been chased by three men and robbed. The officers commandeered a car, finally capturing the trio on Ward street.

Swenson, police say, admits having served three years in the Penitentiary for armed robbery on a naval officer while he was in the navy. In Roxbury Court the men were held in $2,000 each.

SCENE OF FATAL GUN DUEL IN EAST BOSTON
Patrolman Albert M. Matroni was fatally wounded by George Wright of No. 58 Liverpool street, East Boston, after he and a brother officer, Patrolman Thomas Duggan, had placed Wright under arrest for the alleged theft of an automobile. Duggan was wounded in the gun battle, as was Wright. The latter is reported to be dying at the City Hospital. Inset are (left) Patrolman Duggan and (right) Patrolman Matroni.

RED OF ROSES FOR WORLD FLIERS

Santa Monica in Gala Attire Today to Welcome the Army Aviators

Santa Monica, Cal., Sept. 23 (A.P.)—Santa Monica was grooved today for the return of the globe-grinding army aviators, who last St. Patrick's Day set out on what their skill and courage were to make the first successful round-the-world flight in history.

Clover Field, where the aviators had, been transformed into a bed of roses. All night trucks laden with Southern California bouquets rumbled out to the field from communities that stripped their flower gardens to provide a ray and colorful welcome to the fliers. From San Pedro came a whole shipload of fragrant blooms.

While the world touring plane was just expected to arrive from San Diego until 2 p. m., preparations were made to celebrate the coming with a day-long program of "Wild West" and aerial stunts leading up to the ceremony officially welcoming the fliers by public officials of Southern California and representatives of the army and navy. Two hundred thousand persons were expected to attend the ceremonies.

Mother Greets World Flight Commander

San Diego, Cal., Sept. 23 (Universal)—For the first time in history man has flown around the world. Two of the four airplanes which left here and a third plane which replaced one lost at sea, came back from out of the East, having completely girdled the earth.

The Army Air Service designated Santa Monica as the official starting point, so that for all official purposes the flight will not end until today when the fliers will make the short jump of 100 miles to the Los Angeles suburb. After that they will proceed to San Francisco, Portland and Seattle by seaplane.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Smith, parents of the flight commander, Mr. Robert C. Harding, mother of Lieutenant Jack Harding, took turns in kissing their famous flying sons, the white intimate friends and brothers flying officers were about in greetings.

RADCLIFFE GIRL SUGGESTED FOR LEAGUE POST

Geneva, Sept. 23.—Recommendations that Sarah Wambaugh, daughter of Professor George Wambaugh of Harvard, be appointed to the vacancy on the Executive Committee of the League of Nations, have been made to the Council of the League of Nations.

Miss Wambaugh is said to know much about plebiscites, and a plebiscite will later be held in order to determine whether the district becomes autonomous or is annexed to France or Germany.

Among the objections which have been made to the appointment are that the American contingent already has a representative on the League of Nations Commission in the person of Major G. W. Stephens of Canada, and also that it seems undesirable to place a woman on such a commission.

Miss Wambaugh, in addition to the distinction of being one of the two women among actual political work in the Secretariat of the League of Nations, is an expert in political science and international law. In 1920 she published her monograph on "Plebiscites." She is a Yale graduate.

GERMANY READY TO JOIN IF GIVEN EQUAL RIGHTS

Berlin, Sept. 23 (U.S.A.)—The German Cabinet agreed unanimously this afternoon to declare itself in favor of the republic's entry into the League of Nations, provided the powers guarantee Germany full admission with rights equal to the other big nations. President Ebert presided at the meeting.

An official communique points out the problems of the minority in the Saar territory and says that Germany cannot be settled satisfactorily only if Germany joins the league. The Cabinet's resolution will be communicated to the league members.

5 HURT AS TROLLEYS CRASH; THREE MAY DIE

Chelsea, Mass., Sept. 23.—Five persons were injured, when two trolley cars of the Middlesex Traction Company crashed head on at Atlantic Avenue today. Moreover, the driver and the passenger of the trolley car, and probably fatally hurt, Martin Dwyer of Northampton, one of five passengers hurt, is not expected to live.

A wrong or mistaken signal at a switch where the cars were supposed to meet is believed to have caused the crash.

the race, and now has less than half the vote of either of his rivals.

HOW CANDIDATES STAND.

The standing of the candidates is:
La Follette..... 70,224
Coolidge..... 70,008
Davis..... 33,212
La Follette's gains were made in many sections of the country. No large gains were registered in any one city. A change of 448 votes put the Wisconsin Senator in the lead. Coolidge led on the previous day by 313 votes.

A heavy vote was cast in New York city and vicinity, the total for the day being 2,454, in which Coolidge picked up more than La Follette, giving him a lead of 288 votes in a total of 54,653 ballots cast up to date.

Perhaps the most interesting and most significant canvass was that of Elbert H. Peck on Sunday, on the occasion of the Brooklyn-Pittsburgh game. A comparatively small crowd attended the game. The result showed Coolidge leading, with La Follette second and Davis last.

The mail vote, as usual, was heavily in favor of La Follette.

Poll Indicates Coolidge Will Win Maryland

Baltimore, Sept. 23.—Figures of the Baltimore American's Presidential poll of Maryland indicate that President Coolidge has a good chance to carry this State because Senator La Follette is running strongly and will cut into the national Democratic majority in Baltimore. President Harding carried Maryland by 54,009 votes, and the poll indicates that Davis will not get enough of the bulky Democratic back to win the State. Coolidge is ahead in a neck and neck race between the three candidates in the American poll, which confirms predictions of political leaders that the election will be very close with Coolidge as the winner here. The figures in the poll to date are: Coolidge, 2,390; Davis, 2,017; and La Follette, 2,607. Coolidge is drawing more former Democratic votes than Davis is drawing former Republican votes.

MEANS NAILED AS $276,814 TAX DODGER

Internal Revenue Agent Puts Lien on Residence to Get Three-Year Bill

Washington, Sept. 23.—(N.Y.S.)—Clifton B. Means, the elusive and controversial star witness in the Lauchlin Curran investigation, again ran afoul of the courts here today. Galen Taft, collector of internal revenue for the District of Baltimore, filed a lien in District Supreme Court against Means' residence at No. 903 Sixteenth street here, in the sum of $276,814.40—this representing what Means is alleged to owe the government for income taxes during the past three years. The exact amount of Means' income tax which the government over this period is $21,099.52, and to this amount has been added more than $500 in interest and penalties. Means was absent from Washington today. He is reported to have left the capital last midnight for an unannounced destination. Previously he had vowed a demand for a reassembling of the House-Internal Revenue committee in order, he said, that he could lay further "startling and sensational" facts of corruption in high places before the investigators.

MEXICO REBELS RAO RANCH OF WALTHAM MAN

An American Killed in Attack by Bandits, Capital Is Notified

Washington, Sept. 23.—Property owned by E. W. Graves of Waltham, Mass., was attacked by Mexican bandits or rebels and Paul Anselmi, an American, was killed, the State Department was informed by the Consul Harry H. Ott, at Monterrey, Mexico.

The firm of E. W. and D. N. Graves of No. 637 Main street, Waltham, are managers of a cattle ranch and coconut plantation property of 5,000 acres in the State of Tabasco, Mex. This property is owned by a stock company. Ernest W. Graves of No. 124 Pleasant street, Arlington, senior member of the firm, received a telegram from Miguel Bosch, superintendent of the property near Monterrey, asking briefly that "revolutionaries" had raided the ranch property and killed a foreman. Particulars would follow by mail, he said.

BEACHED RUM-RUNNER IS CLAIMED BY SALEM MAN

Gloucester, Sept. 23.—The motor boat which was put ashore on the rocks on the back shore of Eastern Point after an exciting chase of 30 miles from Rum Row by Capt. Ryder and crew of the Coast Guard cutter was claimed today by Michael Sullivan of Salem, known popularly as "Bubby."

Sullivan obtained the service of a trawler, which went to the scene off the rocks into deep water. He said his craft was stolen by unknown persons.

GOV. SMITH PREDICTS HIS RENOMINATION

Albany, Sept. 23.—Governor Alfred E. Smith today predicted the renomination of the entire Democratic State ticket by the State convention in Syracuse before leaving for that city on the Empire State express.

Asked whether his prediction meant that he was placing himself formally on record as willing to accept the nomination for another term, the Governor said: "I'll let you judge that for yourselves."

AIN'T GONNA JAZZ NO MORE, SO HANGS SELF
Berlin, Sept. 22.—The day of jazz music are gone, and as there is nothing else for me to do I have decided to hang myself," were the farewell words of Kurt Krueger, bass drummer in a local jazz band. Krueger was discharged because he persisted in dominating the band's performance by too busy application of his drumsticks and cymbals.

COTTON JUMPS $9.50 A BALE IN BULL MART

Government Report Sends Up Price to Limit for a Day's Trading

New York, Sept. 22.—The government cotton report today proved so sensationally bullish that a big buying movement set in on the market here, quickly advancing prices 130 points, or $9.50 a bale.

October sold at $23.50, thereby reaching the 200-point limit permitted in any one trading day. December touched 22.55. Mill interests were among the heaviest buyers.

At New Orleans cotton jumped $10 a bale, the trading limit for one day, upon receipt of the government report. October touched 22.55 and December 22.55.

The cotton crop was forecast at 12,500,000 equivalent 50-pound bales by the Department of Agriculture. This was 191,000 bales smaller than estimated two weeks ago. Last year's crop was 10,135,671 bales.

DEXTER MILLS PLACED ON FULL TIME BASIS

"I DON'T CARE" STAR FACES OPERATION
Word came from Los Angeles that Eva Tanguay is to have the "right eye" and must have an operation in order to save the other eye. A cataract is responsible. "I haven't decided yet to submit to the operation," the comedienne says. "It's an awful risk, either way."

GIRL ROBBING MOTORCYCLE IN COLLISION; 2 MAY DIE
WORLD WAR VETERANS

Brockton, Sept. 22 (Universal).—Cecilia Cooper, Brockton's famous bobbed-hair flapper, is in Auburn Prison with her young boss hand at the end of their sensational series of audacious holdups last winter. But another, apparently just as daring and elusive, has taken her place.

Her first appearance one day last week caused only a ripple of excitement. But Brockton detectives are on edge as the result of her latest bold holding.

Fifteen members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars were playing gin-rummy in their club rooms after a dance. Outside, a sedan driven by the beautiful young woman with clipped locks drew up. Three men in the car casually descended and went to the door of the club rooms. One knocked; the door was opened. The three entered, and immediately lined up the fifteen veterans against the walls, covering them with revolvers.

Jewelry amounting to $1,100 and $100 in cash were taken from the pockets of the victims. Finding a policeman's badge in the pockets of Joseph Kerosene, one of the bandits, knocked him unconscious with a revolver butt.

The veterans were then made to the floor on the floor, and the bandits snatched out to the car in which their bobbed-hair leader drove them away.

UNCONSCIOUS 18 DAYS FROM FRACTURED SKULL

Providence, R. I., Sept. 22.—No change was reported in the condition of Robert Faye of No. 422 Montgomery street, who has been unconscious as the Cross-Island Hospital's eighteen days.

The case is one of the most remarkable that has come before the local profession in a long time. Faye has not been conscious at any time since he was admitted to the hospital with a fractured skull.

EXPLORER NEAR DEATH WHILE IN FAR NORTH

Bullet Penetrates the Cabin of Donald MacMillan in Walrus Hunt

Winnipeg, Man., Sept. 22 (A.P.)—Donald R. MacMillan, the Arctic explorer, narrowly escaped death by shooting of the coast of North Greenland last August. It became known here today. "This was the second time a bullet had threatened the explorer's life in the far North."

While hunting a walrus for the White's supply of most at Chortok, fifteen miles north of Etah, one of the members of the expedition accidentally discharged a large caliber rifle. The bullet passed down through the side of the expedition's schooner Bowdoin, MacMillan's vessel, shattering a portrait of one of the explorer's classmates at Bowdoin College. It then passed through a partition into the engine room.

Through a hole and a large steel cut and into the timbers of the schooner. MacMillan had just left the cabin where he had been sitting at work directly in line with the bullet's course.

MacMillan's previous adventure with death in the Arctic was when he was serving as a lieutenant in the late Rear Admiral Peary in 1905. When the steamer Roosevelt was in White Sound returning from the North Pole discovery trip, MacMillan was shot in three places while acting in his cabin. A bullet was sent into his forehead, passed outward through the shoulder and severed the end of one finger.

MOTHER AND DAUGHTERS HELD AS SHOPLIFTERS

Lowell, Mass., Sept. 22.—Mrs. Emma Simpson and two daughters, Alexandra, aged two years, and Beatrice, aged eleven, were arrested in a recent case, charged with shoplifting in the M. Peck department store. They pleaded not guilty and their cases were continued until Wednesday.

The three were arrested in the store. Each had a button bag. In one bag was found a child's dress, while the third was empty. It is charged the coats were taken from the store.

GERMANS TO NAME NEW AMBASSADOR TO U.S.

Berlin, Sept. 22.—Dr. Otto Ludwig Westfahl, German Ambassador to Washington, has been asked to retain that post until after the Presidential election in the United States, but there is much speculation in the German press as to his successor.

Dr. Rolf, the German Ambassador in Tokyo; Baron von Maltzan, at present assistant in Foreign Minister Stresemann; Prince Hatzfeldt, formerly German ambassador with the Rhine and Commission in the occupied area; and Dr. Wilhelm Cohn, former Vice-Chancellor, are among the men most generally mentioned.

OUR MATURE PROBABLY GOOD CHEER

"Aren't We All" at the Hollis Proves Real Mental Tonic

By NICHOLAS YOUNG
It is as of and therefore extra of the reviewer to imagine the late afternoon mental tonic in the theatre whenever something more agreeable than the usual run of things touches his imagination. It may be the old, fast truth, or just his imagination you cannot always tell.

Anyway, you were dead sure of it, right at the Hollis after three exhilarating acts with Cyril Maude in Frederick Lumsden's "Aren't We All?"

There was a soothing sense of happiness in the amiable old philosopher, Lord Grenham, who was taken so well in hand by Mr. Maude that his middle aged anxiety in the quest of neurotic relief seemed the natural procedure.

JOYFUL MR. FITZ.
But, as the thing turned out, his own deflection from the established proprieties merely gave his keener knowledge of human nature when his own family drifted into domestic difficulties through a well placed but entirely improper kiss or two. And thereupon Mr. Maude became a joyful Mr. Fitz.

Amongst complications caused through "Aren't We All" in a fashion that might have turned the evening into drama instead of comedy, indeed, that undoubtedly it would have been the case, had not boyant Mr. Maude set his own good example on the subject of broad thinking concerning chance meetings under sheltering palms in soft Egyptian moonlight. He gave a radiant exhibition of a man smiling at years, taking his own way with life with the elastic ease of a youth of thirty.

For that matter most of Mr. Maude's lesser characters were yielding in the joyful comedy. And Mr. Maude found himself easily pressed in artistic comedy from many sides. There was a smile in all of them—a smile waiting taking at almost any price.

OTHER BRIGHT SPOTS.
While there was no escaping the infectious good cheer in Mr. Maude's performance, there were other bright spots provided by Harry Ashford and Cynthia Brooks, who made the most of two extremely amusing characters.

"Aren't We All" was just good natured comedy—not rollicking or boisterous but undeniably penetrating. There were no dull moments, the incidents were well foreseen, and the play was a real thing. That's why it was good to see it in the theatre. Anyway, Mr. Maude sent your spirit soaring into pleasant "aren't we all" was in full swing.

MT. VERNON COUNCIL.
K. OF C. PICKS BRENNAN
Running from the floor, William E. Brennan, Boston newspaper reporter, was elected.

Mr. Vernon Council, Knights of Columbus, at the annual election held in the Columbus Club, Pleasant street, Duxbury.

Brennan polled 120 votes, to 45 for present Deputy Grand Knight Edward L. Van Nostrand. Other officers elected were: Dr. Joseph Manning, deputy grand knight; Everett S. Berry, chancellor; and Peter H. Lachman, warden.

WILBUR—"Innocent Eyes," musical revue with all the general show bits.

WILBUR—"The Darling Butler," Charles Braggs up to his old tricks in a little time machine comedy.

THEATRE—"Add Me in 'Lollipop,'" Mr. Swaine's dancing star in a merry musical comedy.

COPY—"Don Up," Entertaining dance of Corolla mountains, with Lucille Lawrence dancing.

Society Shamed Racing This Year at Longchamps

By BETTY ALLEN
The fashionable world is supposed to return to Paris when the autumn racing starts. But being the fashionable world, it does exactly as it pleases—and here as at Biarritz and the other popular spots.

Of the few fashionable Americans who watched Lord Fitz's Regatta with the common London crowd, Mr. and Mrs. James Lowell Putnam, now of Paris, thought the Putnams have not resided in Boston for a number of years, they have kept up their many connections here. Mr. Putnam, a member of the Harvard Club, numbers the Tennis and Racquet among his club holdings here, while his wife's name is on the Clinton Club's distinguished roster.

Mr. and Mrs. Putnam, coming to the summer weather, few autumn frocks were in evidence. Summer gowns were worn, and straw hats predominated.

Here and there, of course, a sartorial creation was to be seen which hinted at the coming of autumn. To return to the season, of frocks of wine and purple velvet to be popular winter colors.

THE colony at Park Harbor, Me., which has always a goodly Boston representation, is rapidly being depleted.

Mr. and Mrs. Dudley R. Howe have returned to their Brookline home. The latter was formerly Miss Alice Alenby, whose family has long been prominent at Park Harbor. This is the second season that Mrs. Howe has acted as chairman of the committee of the Village Improvement Society at the respective Maine resort. Owing to her tact and executive ability, a number of delightful dances were held at the inn.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Howe, also of Brookline, have likewise closed their home there, as have Mr. and Mrs. J. Murray Prober of Milton and Mr. and Mrs. James H. Allen of Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Shattuck will not leave Park Harbor until some time in October. Mr. Shattuck is now in charge of the business on Marlborough street. Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Frothingham, on the other hand, will be at the Maine resort, coming down from Montreal on their way home from a summer spent in Europe.

The Frothinghams, who have spent many summers at Long Harbor, will remain until after their departure is vacated by the Assistant Secretary of War and Mrs. Dwight P. Davis, who are leaving in another week.

It was a very jolly party which waved its adieu to the boys left New York the other day.

The party included in addition to Mrs. N. P. Penrose Halliwell, who is charged with the duties of the house, the Misses Hannah and Ellen Halliwell, Miss Esther Cunningham, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Cunningham, and Miss Thomas, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Thomas of Boston, and Miss Martha Wescott, last ex-minister at the Maine resort, and Wheatlands of Boston and Topsham.

Society Notes
F. MURRAY FORBES, Jr., of Boston is the guest of Graf von D. Cushing at "The Lodge" in Newport.

Philip Atsworth Means of Boston was present at the luncheon which Mrs. W. Murray Carey gave the other day at Dalton in honor of Mrs. Edward Robinson of New York.

The Bulgarian Minister and Mrs. Panaretov have concluded their sojourn at Marlborough place, and returned to their Washington residence.

Mrs. J. Frederick Schenk, who spent the summer at the Lenox Club, has moved into her Berkshire villa, "Valley Head" for the autumn. She has been joined there by her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Frederick Schenk.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellen Richards have returned to Tuxedo Park following a summer spent at Fido's Crossing.

WARM GREETING FOR ETHEL BARRYMORE

How refreshing to sit through an evening of real comic opera after listening to the hectic jazz and the poorly trained voices of the "ladies of the chorus" of our 1924 musical comedy.

It is a pleasure to see the story of how the sheriff of Nottingham tried to gain a bride and worldly profit by depriving the rightful Earl of Nottingham of his daughter by giving it to a little maid, Sir Guy of Gisborne. And you have all seen how the Earl became Robin Hood, leader of the band of outlaws and finally captured the sheriff and all came out lovely in the end.

'EMPTY HANDS' RIGHT OFF THE FARM INTO LIFE, B'GOSH

"Empty Hands," a Paramount production, is the title of a magnificent film picture of the Canadian Northwest opening at the Fenway Theatre this week. Lovers of the great open spaces ought to find much to interest them in the grim, though successful struggle waged by Jack Grimshaw, played by Jack Holt, against the wilderness—a struggle in which mere man is pitted against nature with but empty hands and a clear brain to add him.

Jack Holt, always a "he-man" in whatever picture he plays, is an earnest and expert hunter. He is the latter's Canadian daughter, Claire (Norma Shearer), a lovely model but, in the picture, she is ultimately rescued and won by Grimshaw. And the villain is Ward Crane, who plays the part of Bill Foster, married, and the possessor of sleek, black hair and a fashionable mustache.

The plot of "Empty Hands" is that the rugged Grimshaw (Grimshaw) to wrest a living from the black forests into which he and Claire Endicott are suddenly flung when they are carried down the rapids and out to rescue her from the danger into which she has fallen.

Grimshaw had first met Claire at a lively party in his home. For laughing purposes one's the brightest.

He is a very clever character who has been fighting down with another team along this line. This week it is "Empty Hands" that the company are presenting at the Boston Opera House; and those who miss it will miss many things.

It is a pleasure to see the story of how the sheriff of Nottingham tried to gain a bride and worldly profit by depriving the rightful Earl of Nottingham of his daughter by giving it to a little maid, Sir Guy of Gisborne. And you have all seen how the Earl became Robin Hood, leader of the band of outlaws and finally captured the sheriff and all came out lovely in the end.

COURT'S POWER TO BLOCK WAR 'WATERTIGHT'

Protocol on Arbitration and Security Hailed as Key to World Peace

Geneva, Sept. 21. (AP)—A water-tight system against the outbreak of war is the way many delegates today characterized the draft protocol on arbitration and security, which is now being drafted by the International Commission of the League of Nations.

This document is now generally known as the masterpiece of the "active majority" of the League. Several points seemed particularly to strike the delegates. One is the clause providing that consultation with the World Court of Justice be required if, during arbitral procedure, either party to a dispute content that the difficulty was a purely domestic matter.

If the court decided it was an internal question, then the arbitral court could not deal with it. Thus it is the court which differentiates between an internal and an external question.

One of the points approved by many of the delegates is the explicit definition of an aggressor as one who refuses to arbitrate and who refuses also to carry out the preliminary measures ordered by the court before a dispute has reached its final stage in order to prevent the outbreak of armed conflict.

CAVE-IN VICTIM IS GIVEN AIR THROUGH TUBE

East Weymouth Man's Life
Saved After Burial Alive
For Two Hours

Buried alive in a thirty-foot well for more than two hours, John Mahoney, thirty-two, of Morsefield road, East Weymouth, breathed through a rubber tube until freed, working frantically, had succeeded in excavating sufficiently to effect his rescue.

The accident, which occurred when the retaining walls of the well which Mahoney was digging collapsed, was witnessed by his wife, who rushed to a neighbor's home for aid. When it was found there were no facilities for saving the man's life, the fire department was summoned.

A rubber tube was attached to a piece of piping and pushed down through eighteen feet of loose dirt to where Mahoney was held prisoner in a cramped compartment that was created by the collapse of the retaining wall boards. In this manner, the victim was able to breathe until aid could reach him.

After an examination, Dr. Libby said Mahoney appeared to be none the worse for his thrilling experience.

SAUGUS B. & M. TRACKS MAY BE USED BY "L"

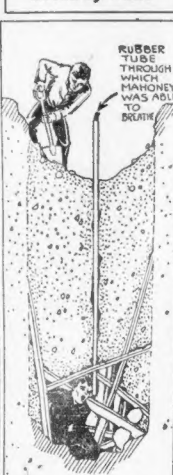

Plans for running Boston Elevated cars on the tracks of the Boston & Maine Railroad are being investigated by the Metropolitan Planning Board, as the present State Legislature directed should be done.

Henry L. Harriman, chairman of the board, said: "The investigation is still going on; the board has no definite report to make as yet, and probably will not have for some time. The electric cars will run on the branch from Fall River square as far as Malden, probably. If the proposed plan is ever put into effect, it will be a great improvement."

BATES AND CAMBRIDGE DEBATE MEET TONIGHT

Lawson, Me., Sept. 23.—Debaters from Bates and the Cambridge University Union of English will discuss here tonight the question of recognition of the Russian Soviet government. One American and two Englishmen will argue in favor of such a step while two Americans and an Englishman will speak in opposition. The affirmative team will be composed of John P. Davis of Bates and A. P. Marshall and Richard A. Butler of Cambridge. Their opponents will be Edwin Chatham and Fred T. Gossage of Bates and W. O. Sparrow of Cambridge.

Voluntarily Will Press Charge of Abduction Against Their Son-in-Law

Ernest Brugelin, aged forty, of Somerville avenue, Somerville, and his fifteen-year-old bride, who was Vincenza Volenti, spent the day and of their honeymoon in the Somerville jail.

The couple were arrested in Haverhill on complaint of the bride's mother, Mrs. Joseph Volenti, the man on the charge of abduction and the youthful bride on the charge of being a stubborn child.

Brugelin, a boarder at the home of the bride's parents, ran off with the girl five days ago and the couple were married by the city clerk of Haverhill, after they had secured a waiver of the five-day law.

Following their return to Somerville by the police, both were locked up.

Bay State Man in Prison Cell Lands a Good Job

North Bergen, N. J., Sept. 22.—A prison cell has proved an employment bureau for William King, Massachusetts youth, who was arrested in the railroad yards here as a vagrant.

In the cell next to King was John Kananen, shoe factory foreman, awaiting a hearing on a charge of drunkenness. Kananen learned of King's plight and offered him a job.

Recorder Mills, not to be outdone in a courtesy competition, gave such a suspended sentence when they were arraigned before him.

Up. A short time later, however, the parents of the bride appeared before a magistrate and entered bail for their daughter. They took the child bride to their home and declared that she would be taken back into the family circle without reproach.

The forty-year-old husband, however, is being arraigned today on the abduction charge.

If you could only tell your story—

In your life...in every life...banker or butcher, lady or laundress...there is enough drama for a novel. Editors realize that if they could get the stories of the ninety and nine, they would have material for a magazine such as never before was published. But the difficulty is that the ninety and nine are inarticulate; they live the stories, but they can't tell them. It is the one in one hundred who has the ability to write well. There is a magazine in which they, the trained writers, tell their stories. In the issue on sale today are many remarkable documents. For instance:

- A Woman Tells How and Why She Planned to Murder Her Husband
The amazingly frank statement of Edwina Levin MacDonnell, novelist, whose books you know. She married impulsively at sixteen and two years later decided to end an unbearable situation by killing the man she loved and hated. She bought her weapon, made her plans—then Fate took a hand.
- A Chicago Woman Asks...and Answers...Why Am I Married?
Joy Gelfer, who has written some exceptional fiction, here tells the story of her own lonely childhood and of the problems that came with womanhood...a searching examination of her own heart, from the meeting with her first beau to the day she found the stimulus to her career in love for her children.
- What You Feel and Do When You Find You Are Going Blind
We all know Basil King as a distinguished novelist. How many of us know that his most important books were written after he found out he was facing loss of sight. In all your reading, you can find nothing more inspiring than this intimate record of his courage and achievements as each day brought him closer to blindness.
- H. G. Wells' Views on the Sensible Way to Treat Your Son
The man who wrote the famous Outline of History, as well as some of the most unusual novels of our time, believes that parents have a habit of getting in the road of their children. You will see a way to apply his experience to yours by reading the radical views this great thinker has developed as a parent.
- Will H. Hays Learned a Lot from the Folks Back in Sullivan, Ind.
Here we have a small-town boy, grown to independent lawyer; become the master political strategist of his time; postmaster general, finally head of the fifth greatest industry in the world. What was the foundation of his power? It was laid by his neighbors in a little Indiana town. He tells you of them and of what they taught him.
- A Man of 71 Who Believes That Success Is Easier Than Failure
Ed Howe, the Kansas philosopher, is one of the keenest thinkers in America. Just past 71, he has been looking back over his life. The things he has seen and experienced have given him decided ideas about you and your neighbors. Many a man, reading them, will be a different man when he goes to work tomorrow.
- If these six samples be indicative, then here truly is a magazine that's different. And they are only samples. B. C. Forbes, from his vast experience as a business expert, tells the part wives play in men's careers; Norman Hapgood tells how he will vote, and why; Irvin Cobb, Ray Long, Paul de Kruif, deal with bill-boards, babies, and heroes. The fiction, too, is written as close to life as these remarkable personal experience stories. For instance:

- The Misunderstood Husband
A story of the Other Woman, Clair of the drawing voice, with the fire of challenge in her lips. And the wife, Mary, the sort of mother you find in real life. By Elsie Robinson.
- The Thin Skin of Civilization
A story by Charles Nordhoff from beautiful Palm-fringed islands where there is no Ten Commandments—of two white men and two native women—of love, and treachery, and a Danish vengeance.
- A Young Man Who Put Salt on the Tail of Success
Montague Glas, the famous humorist, at his best in a story of an ambitious Jewish pianist whose love affair carries him into cloaks and suits—and a lot of complications.

Forecast of fall fashions 1924

Paris

Boston

"What are they wearing in Paris?" is the first question every woman asks. "What fabrics are new, and what are the colors?" are her next questions. Priscilla Price and the Fashion Authorities of Boston give below the latest news of Fall Fashions, as interpreted after visits to Paris and other fashion centers of Europe as well as New York.

FABRICS

Morning

Plain and plaid kasha, and the ribbed woollens lead in popularity. Stripes are very good for sports wear, combined with rough surfaced woollens. Homespuns, heavy chevrons and soft-finished woollens are good for the one-piece or tunic street dress.

Afternoon

Corded silks of the bengaline and faille variety supersede satin to a large extent, although crepe satin is still used by some of the leading couturiers. Silky velvets, particularly panne velvet, are much in demand. Heavy crepes hold their own.

Evening

The very newest evening gowns have no trimming. They are made of lame, silk velvets or brocaded chiffon. Crepes, satins and chiffons are sometimes beaded, jewelled, embroidered or trimmed with lace. Evening wraps are of rich brocade, embroidered velvets, and metal cloth.

Colored pearls are another note. Orchid, blue, gold or silver to match eye dress. They are the latest in French jewelry.

MISS GRACE VINCENT, of Mofr Grant, says that brown is the leading color for coat or costume suit, with furs of every sort for trimming.

COLLEGE girls particularly are delighted with the unusual styles in kasha, flannel, Jersey and imported homespuns. Their older sisters and mothers select evening gowns and gorgeous wraps from such famous Paris houses as Brecoff, Worth, Jean Paton, and Calot. Many of these show a hint of the flare silhouette by tiny gores at the hem. Evening dresses have girlish of brilliants, or are ornamented simply by one giant white magnolia blossom. Fresh pink is smart for evening, though black satin is as chic as ever. Tea is served if a shopper is tired and wants it, while models give her an opportunity to view the newest hat by Marie Guy. For becomingness, her hats are seldom equalled. Silky velvet trimmed with a two-tone ostrich brush in deep blue, brown with equestre feathers, black pressed beaver with blonde, fall edged with velvet are some of the newest wrinkles in hats for Fall and Winter. Each hat is fitted to the customer's head, a service which means much in these days of many head sizes.

MISS GREEN, of the Shepard Stores, says: WASHINGTON capeskin gloves are good for Fall and Winter wear. Later on, they will be offered in colors such as red, green or blue for motorling.

The Bramley is a smart little glove. It is trimmed at the wrist with a contrasting band which fastens with a buckle. It comes in mode, or beige.

The Bramley slip-on stretch glove is a popular type. It is made of grey knit, capskin or suede.

There is some demand for grey gloves and white gloves are coming back. Black gloves are worn with mourning. Nearly every other sort of costume calls for a glove in darker or matching color.

MR. MONTGOMERY, of Gilchrist's, favors THE straight line in both dresses and coats, with occasional gores. In frocks black is the smartest in silk, with penny brown, and the wood tones in twills, kasha, Jerseys and plaids.

Necklines are high in many coats, and most often round. Boutache braid, buttons, especially brass ones, and Directorate capes finish the smartest costume. Belts are found missing, or perhaps just across the back. Some afternoon dresses have removable sleeves, thus making them practical for day or evening wear. Materials are bengaline, faille and crepe satin.

The blouse effect with very full skirt, is good for evening. So also is the long, straightline tunic effect dress, with the waistline almost at the knee. Heading is done elaborately in large flower design. Chenille on georgette, velvet, and metal fabrics, are rich and colorful at night, sleeves and with a low, round neck.

There are no short blouses, most of them being made tunic style, reaching almost to the hem of the underslip. Very often the tunic is made of the same material as the lining of the coat, and the underslip is of the same material as the coat. This is known as the ensemble suit, and is very smart.

Separate skirts are wrap-around in style, with two-button closing, and have very narrow belts sewed right into them. One model is attached to a hip girdle. Plaid kasha is very good for skirts. All this new skirt drop down on the hips, below the normal waistline.

The new coats are all long, usually fur trimmed, leather in the lead. Dyed fitch is soft and becoming, whether on jamuna cloth or fawn-skin. Linings are of kasha or silk crepe. Brooming in contrasting colors. There is often an elastic skirt across the back, attached below the waistline. Sleeves are set-in or raglan, with the new bishop or molen sleeves and narrow cut cuffs of cloth or fur.

MR. TESH, of the Winchester Shop, A PROPOS of a material called tudeydown for topcoats. This material is imported, and made into straightline models with the new bishop sleeve and a fur collar. The straight box-like lined coat also has fur collar and cuffs, while the sports coats have no fur trimming, but set in plain sleeves. This latter is considered a better style than the raglan.

COLORS

Morning

Penny brown, shutter green, henna and warm reds are the leading colors. Black is very important for street wear. Roman stripes in brilliant color combinations are popular for sports wear.

Afternoon

Black, dark brown, cinnamon, light beige, champagne and putty colors, also light grays and blues, but not navy blue, are the colors for afternoon wear.

Evening

White, so popular at Deauville, still stands supreme for evening. Gold and silver, combined, come next, with light tomato and "pivione" (which resembles ripe cherries) both very smart. Pastel shades make becoming dance frocks, and pale rose is the newest. Much use is made of both metal and dyed laces and embroidery. Capes and cloaks are sumptuously trimmed with, or made entirely of, gorgeous furs.

Sneaks of Jersey are pleated on each side and have long sleeves. One-piece knitted (Swiss) dresses are of silk and come in the fashionable high colors. They are very neat and wear exceptionally well. The one-piece knitted wool dress is as popular as any sports models. It has long light sleeves and the two-piece collar, which means that it can be worn open in V-neck fashion, or fastened close to the chin. Sweaterproof skirts are also methproof. They come in the high colors of flannel, and the wrap-around model, instead of being slit, has an extra pleat underneath the closing, for roominess. Plaid knitted skirts have matching sweaters, the fronts of which are patterned in some contrasting color. Sweaters are mostly golf coat style, and the brushed wool ones in gray colors lead to successful dressing.

MR. M. PLAUT, of C. F. Hovey's, predicts a growing demand for brown satin pumps for evening wear. He also says that:

THE popular too is a medium round one and patent leather is smartest for day time wear, with tan and black calf and brown suede following closely. Black suede is also good, and black velvet will be worn later.

Pumps which do not bulge at the sides, but fit the foot snugly are very popular. Many of them have the pored effect, either at the sides or in front. If in front, there is a small buckle (and large ones) is used, or possibly a small bow of rhinestones.

Other daytime shoes are in the plain one-strap effect, and a few colors in tan calf will be worn this winter.

With evening dresses, pump or strap models of gold or silver kid are very smart. Plain gold or silver brocaded slippers are bought, to be worn with almost any color of gown. Blonde satin (a brown almost the color of honey) is lovely, and comes in several pretty styles.

In general, the brown tones lead, though black makes one's foot look smaller and is, therefore, often preferred to color. Heels are nearly all covered with the material the shoe is made of. There are practically no leather heels. Straps fasten with buckles, rather than buttons, and some side ornaments are used. These are of rhinestone or cut steel.

MISS A. NOONAN, of R. H. Stearns, reports collars as being shallow. The bib-shaped collar is also good style, and nearly all collars have matching cuffs.

THEY are often of organdie. The Hana ones have fascinating white shoes of bronze lace are fast and round. Point Vante lace is good for neckwear, so is rose point and Irish, in pointed style, or for the boat-neck dress. French ruffled frocks are dainty and charming, in either white or ecru. White is nice for the black gown, while ecru is used on the beige and tan shades.

A rich ecru in tones of blue, pink, red and purple is chosen to wear with an afternoon dress of taupe velvet.

The Buyer of a very smart shoe shop looks favorably upon suede in black and dark brown, although he likes the patent and dull leathers better. He speaks well of a medium round toe, with a tendency to an inch high heel known as the box Cuban.

THIS shop offers blonde satin for evening wear, in addition to gold, silver and black-and-white brocades. There is also a gold or silver brocaded cloth on a white background, which smart women are having dyed to match gowns of red, green or peach. These slippers, with side ornaments, are very lovely.

The newest stockings offered by this shop are in the beige shades, gun metal, mushroom, a wonderful new color, cannon, and, for evening, mauve. Nappa is an indescribably beautiful tan and harmonizes with any color of gown.

Narrow Paris clix come on some silk hosiery, wide clix not being shown at all.

For sports wear, stockings in the jacquard patterns on a camel colored ground are smartest. These are worn with brogues, which are imported for sports wear.

MR. CROOKS, of Jordan Marsh, says: OUTSTANDING for Fall is the three-piece costume or ensemble suit as it is called. It is developed in soft kashes combined with georgette or crepe de chine.

The Directorate is too severe for most women to become very popular. It is not taking well.

Straight lines prevail. Street and afternoon gowns are bellows, or with a narrow string giraffe in the back. The new wide suede belt on many sport models.

Sleeves to 14 inches off are skirts in Paris. From 15 to 15 in America. The French wear them longer in the evening.

Long light sleeves and buttons are seen on every gown for day wear. In the evening there are no sleeves. For dressy afternoon frocks the shoulder is not exposed. The waist by the armpit falls over making a little cap. This is a very becoming line, especially to an older woman.

In the morning kasha and Jersey are favorites. Worth makes many models of heavy faille and bengaline. One new faille is silver side train hang gracefully from lovely gowns.

Evening gowns are fashioned of velvets, rich brocades, rhinestones embroidered metal cloths. Some are trimmed with ostrich.

A high neck line is the newest. High collars are favored. The deep V is smart, too. For evening a low, ruffled front décolletage with a high back or a high front and low V or oval line is stylish. They are never the same, as in past seasons.

Sumptuous furs trim or make lovely warm evening wraps. The feather box is not seen so much on them as in the Spring openings. Velvets and metal brocades are best.

Spanish shawls are extremely popular in brilliant colors, or black with vivid green or American Beauty embroidery. The Spanish influence is felt in the lavish use of fringe and tassels on dresses.

ONE of the smart glove shops expects to sell a good many suede gloves this season.

Slip-on models are among the newest, in all the wood tones, grey, black and white. White kid gloves, both short and long, will be worn more than last season, though no great popularity is expected for the long white kid.

Fancy cuffs, perforated, stitched or backed by contrasting colors, are very stylish, in one-button snap fastening.

Glance kid gloves are being worn, in all fashionable shades. Cape-kid gloves will be much in demand a little later.

MRS. PHILLIPS, of Filene's French Shop, proudly remarked: THE Prince of Wales came home on my ship! I had my passage before he started his. She also said that the dresses on the women in the Prince's party were all French. The straight, slim, boyish silhouette is most popular. Skirts are extremely short, about 15 inches from the ground or just covering the knees.

For evening wear, metal, brocades, cretonnes applied on lace are made in simple draped models or with Paton's wing drapery. The Directorate is not adapted to many frocks except for the daytime. Kasha and French Jersey, plain or striped, make sports and street dresses.

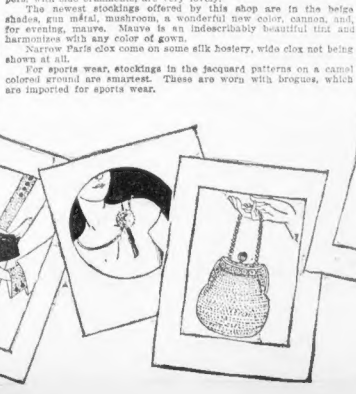

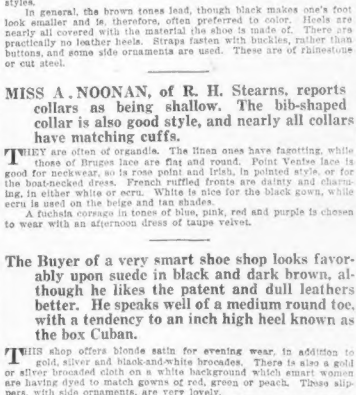

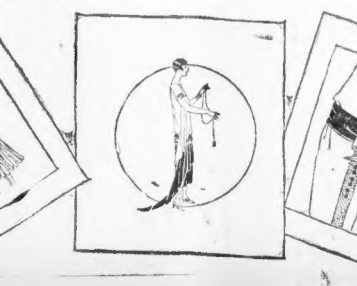

Shoes are lovely. Lady Diana Manners and Lady Hamilton, who were with the Prince, wore beautiful brocade ones. Mostly with little clusters of straps on the instep. There are not so many black satin slippers worn in Paris, but little shops have sprung up everywhere, where you can take your slippers and have them hand-painted. This is very new.

Lizard shoes are the newest, but very expensive. Leather, kid and patent leather are worn on the street. Kid is dyed to match every frock.

Pink and blue stockings, with silver slippers, are much more popular than nude, flesh or matching silver. The beige and brown tones are smartest for day wear. Gunmetal is good, too, but gray, which you have heard much about, are not seen very often, except to blend with an ensemble.

The waistline is on the hips. It has not gone back to normal. You see it getting higher in this country, but not in France. Premet favors green, particularly shiver green, Annes and Renee, purple, a lovely shade called Parma Violet and the fuchsia shades.

Lacquered flowers are the newest accessories. White georgette flowers are popular, too. The white gardenia of last season is out. Much newer than the regular sort are small deep fringed ones. They are like baby Spanish shawls, and are thrown around the neck, fastened on one shoulder and worn under a fur coat. Very chic at tea time.

R. H. WHITE'S Fur Department

EXPECTS a great demand for anakin coats trimmed with squirrel in gray or cocoa tones. Squirrel is much better than skunk this year for trimming on seal.

Coats are long or 7-8th length and usually fasten with one button at the side. Sleeves are barrel or bishop in style, this feature often being of some contrasting fur. For instance, a seal coat is likely to have sleeves with the bishop section in mink. In this case, the collar would also be of mink.

Raccoon, silver rat, and a sheared leopard cat fur are made into attractive sports models. Caracul is stylish in brown, light tan and black.

Animal skins are a little smarter than the flat stole effects. Totes of mole are trimmed with touches of ermine. There are a few exceptions composed of small skins, crossed in the back, where they are gracefully from the neckline.

Many coats show a decided tendency to flare at the bottom, though the straight-line model is much in demand.

MR. W. J. BRAND, of Bedley and Brand,

PREDICTS popularity for a lovely crepe, fall known as Carab. It is a lovely soft brown in which a little tinge of pink is noticeable.

Jeep gown is another good shade of wool jersey, and so is Holland blue. Hollyberry crepe de Chine is heavenly for evening wear—just as red as the name implies, and softer than you can imagine. Cinchre is the name of a beautiful broad crepe. It is really a rust tone, with a little cinnamon added.

Terra rouge is a lovely shade of flannel, and reindeer, mandarin and saddle brown are good to that material as well as jersey.

All the wood tones make up beautifully, and blend with the coats and hats seen in other shops.

Much crepe satin, bengaline (a blend of wool and silk) and fallie silk as well as crepe fallie are used in black. They are worn both during the day and at night.

JAZZ ASSAILED, TANGO LAUDED IN REPORT

Women's Committee Also Blames Smart Stories for Improperities

New York Post 21—"New Jazz" is the latest and most popular of the dances, but it is also the most assailed. The women's committee of the American Women's Club, which is the only organization in the city that has a committee on dances, has issued a report on the subject.

The report, based on a long and careful study of all phases of the dance problem, states that the "new jazz" is in itself the cause of most of the sexual and financial dancing.

It states that "new jazz" is a dance that is a combination of the tango and the fox-trot. It is a dance that is a combination of the tango and the fox-trot. It is a dance that is a combination of the tango and the fox-trot.

RUN-DOWN WEAK, NERVOUS

Benefited by First Bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lancaster, Pa.—"After I was married I became terribly run-down and weak. My husband got me a little at once, and it did me much good that I began to feel well and strong again. I am now a healthy, happy woman. I can do my housework up to the time my last was born, a nice little girl in the last of health. I surely am recommending the Vegetable Compound to my friends. They have tried it and they have found it to be the best for a woman's health. Mrs. J. E. Pinkham, 100 State Street, Boston, Mass., has cured me."

When the child had such symptoms as colic, teething troubles, and hot water, I used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is a reliable medicine for all these troubles. For sale by druggists everywhere.

A recent canvass reports 98 out of every 100 women are benefited by

Your Foot Puzzles the Ant

A Greater Power Puzzles You

The ants have selected their sunny place, where the sandy soil is suited to the building of their little city underground. They are working in the mysterious way that puzzles us, with an energy mental and physical that would put us to shame if we realized their power.

The young ants are cared for, taken out and taken in. Captive creatures are kept and actually milked by the ants that take from them a nourishing liquid as we milk cows.

In some cases parasite ants, doing no work whatever, corresponding to our idle rich class, are waited upon with slavish obedience by working ants that ask no questions, but wait humbly on their parasite lords, fighting for them in war, serving them in peace.

There are hatreds, industries, idleness, intelligence, and probably emotions unknown to us in that city of insect life.

Along comes the foot. The heel strikes the ground first, killing a dozen or more. Then the sole strikes the ground—more are killed. The city is flattened, and ant citizens that have gone afar to look for dead caterpillars come back to a "great catastrophe" that wrecked them, puzzles them, represents a power entirely above their feeble understanding.

As the feet walk on the earth, destruction behind them, the mind that controls the feet is looking to the end of the garden path, planning a garden on the right, or the mending of the fence on the left, looking at the great shining sun that lights the path, and the ants below.

How could you hope to make one of the ant survivors understand what has happened?

How could you make the little creature realize that the bigger creature by which its city has been crushed cannot be blamed for killing as he walks abroad?

How could you make that ant understand the power that destroys it in its passage?

You could not.

So you cannot make man understand the Power that ruins the little ant hill, the man and his garden and this earth and the other planets that travel with it, and millions of suns and planets throughout all space.

Many a believing soul that has found comfort hitherto in faith, belief in Supreme goodness, has been shaken by war and its horror.

There is a familiar picture of a father in Belgium, bending over the body of his wife, murdered by a stray shot. At the man's side a child says: "Father, mother did nothing wrong."

Thousands of men have seen their wives and their children killed by stray bullets.

Hundreds of thousands of mothers have seen their sons come back wounded, poisoned with gas, blind, crippled—sorrow and suffering inflicted upon those that had done no wrong.

Millions take literally those two verses from the twelfth chapter of St. Luke and find comfort in them all their lives: "Are not five sparrows sold for two farthings, and not one of them is forgotten before God?"

"But even the very hairs of your head are all numbered. Fear not therefore; ye are of more value than many sparrows."

You can imagine a poor mother sitting in England, her blind son at the cottage door beside her. She remembers the words, "Ye are of more value than many sparrows." She sees the sparrows in the hedge collecting dried grass, building their nests, while the boy at her side is blind forever. It is hard to answer the questions of a mother whose son went to defend his country, when she learns that he has died in dreadful agony doing his duty.

Perhaps this picture of the walking feet and the crushed ants answers as well as any picture could the questions that war raises.

There is a Supreme Power working in a way that cannot be understood by the little creatures with which it deals.

There are results necessary that cannot be obtained without inflicting suffering upon those that have not deserved it. The Power that controls the universe must work for the ends and purposes that affect universal, cosmic existence.

That Power can work only through laws that never change, with effects inevitably following cause, just or unjust.

Fighting Fliers

That's What We Need

The President, "wondering" whether it is worth while to build battleships, now that a ten thousand dollar flying machine can destroy a forty million dollar battleship, will be interested in the statement of scientists at Philadelphia.

They declare that not only the oceans, but all nations lie at the mercy of flying men.

They describe the possibilities of all navies being sunk by fleets of hostile or piratical airships. And, what's more, they declare that entire nations can be put to sleep for forty-eight hours by anesthetics dropped from the air.

They say the invaders plenty of time for looking and trying up prisoners.

What this country needs is flying machines and all the trimmings that go with them, from poison gas to the highest explosives.

A Changing World

But Interesting

The world is constantly changing, the ocean invading the land here, the land conquering and rising above the ocean elsewhere. When you come back, if you do, a million years or so from now, you may find the first country lot you ever bought FORTY MILES OUT in the ocean.

Scientists digging in the Desert of Sahara are uncovering an ancient city. There, far from the water, they find a Roman HARBOR, and the ruins of Roman ships buried in the sand.

Americans that now visit Pavia in Italy, travel a long distance to reach the shore of the Adriatic. They are surprised when told that Pavia was the scene of a great naval battle in which Francis I. was made prisoner, and the noble young fighter, Gaston de Foix, was killed. There the land has conquered the ocean.

The Poor Fish

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

To keep a man interested in your kisses, always let the supply be a little less than the demand.

The modern girl has 80 many more affairs than her mother did, but like the magazine writers, they seem to be mostly heartless. "A manosphere," with very little plot, no climax, and not much of a hero.

What every Helen Rowland girl appears to be looking for is an athletic Greek god, with the temperament of a poet, the hair of a movie star, the manners of a caveman and the income of a bootlegger. What she wants, unfortunately, is a gangster with a bloomy profile, a nice white smile, some grin, and a sweet, unaffected devotion to her whims.

The woman who "holds her breath," when a man begins to propose, nowadays is apt to die of suffocation before he finishes.

A man used to be awake nights wondering if a girl would let him make love to her—but, in these prosaic times, he lies awake wondering if he'll LET her "let him."

Intuition is that sixth sense by which a woman can tell just by the way the telephone ticks, whether a man is ringing up to reassure her—or merely to avert himself.

The girl who is all things to all men, these days, will soon find herself outcasted by the girl who manages to be something just a little "different" to each man.

A man no longer kisses a girl for his own selfish pleasure—but just to give her a "Big Moment" in their love, air, little life.

"Charm" is neither a matter of beauty nor of brains, but a sort of magnetic current which seems to run around a woman and set her eyes twinkling, and every man's heart tingling.

Now an always, it is not the girl with the "come-hither" smile, but the girl with the "forget-me-not" eyes who is remembered longest.

SCIENCE the time of man's creation has dreamed of Paradise, it was joy for every nation some such country to devise. Fair and glowing was the vision of the people in the East, who to fill their hours of leisure, asked for love and song and feast. But the Northerners, cold and sober, wanted no such tender joys like their land, their hearts were delighted in the very scenes of war, so they asked for endless fighting and the things men saw above. When the world, through all the ages that have come and gone since then, whether they were fools or sages, who can judge those honest men? As for me, I see much more in the Persian's dream of bliss, where there was much lovely day sterner than an hour's kiss.

great difference between bread and butter.

The problem is the best contentment has.

Better a little well kept than a great deal forgotten.

To be prejudiced is always to be weak.

Young Mother Wants Work. Helping Hand Editor: I am a young mother, 21 years old, and have two babies, ages two months and two years. I live on a farm at present and my husband does not make much money working in a shoe shop. I would like to know if anyone can suggest what kind of work I could do at home. I am expecting the start in January and would like to do some work at home to help me out. I can crochet and embroider, and would like to take orders for crocheted goods or craft sales. Hoping some kind person will help me out a little.

MRS. A. B. C.

Thanks for "Mac"

Editor Helping Hand: Please thank "Mac" through your column for sending me 12. I certainly can't say very much.

MOTHER OF EIGHT.

Needs Sewing Machine

Helping Hand Editor: I have several pairs of children's rompers, 1½ or two years; few dresses for girl of 8 years, some bonneted for a girl or small woman, one pair women's slippers, size 5½ or 6, coat for girl 16 years or older, several other things. These things are almost all new. I may have other things later.

Many thanks for this generous offering. R. M. C. needs the girl's children's clothing. We are sending you both these dresses.

MRS. A. R.

Home for Girl

Helping Hand Editor: I have a good home to offer a girl about fourteen or fifteen years in return for light duties. We are a comfortable home with a garden, and I am willing to pay for her board and keep. I am writing to you because you may know of an orphan or child of poor parents who would like a good home.

MRS. W. H. W.

Wants Patchwork to Do

Helping Hand Editor: My husband has been sick for two months and I am not able to do anything myself on account of a sore leg. I have four girls, ages 1½, 12 and 8, and one boy, 10 years. They all need clothes very badly. I need a pair of shoes, a coat, a dress, a pair of stockings. If you could get me some patchwork, I would like to have it as I can't do anything else.

For an Infant

Helping Hand Editor: I have some clothes for a newborn baby. Also some things that will fit one between the ages of ten months and one year.

MRS. J. G.

Thank you for this welcome offer.

M. R. K., mother of two little ones, expects the start of work, will appreciate your offering.

Charity begins at home—read the "Helping Hand" at home tonight and you can begin to help tomorrow.

ON THE PREVENTION OF TYPHOID

By Garrett P. Serviss

IN his presidential address to the British Association, meeting in Canada, Sir David Bruce made a very useful statement of the typhoid fever problem. The whole emphasis of his address was upon the prevention rather than the cure of disease. As to typhoid fever, he said that "the fundamental and sound way of attacking this disease is by ordinary hygienic measures, especially a good water supply and good drainage."

When typhoid fever is rife in a community it means that there is defect in one or the other of these essentials, and the municipal authorities should be held to account. There is nothing novel about this statement, but it gains in force by having been so prominently presented.

There is nothing that needs more repetition than advice to look out for your health. An immense amount of sickness is caused by carelessness, either of the victims themselves or of others who may be responsible for the cause of the sickness. Every member of a community can help, by watchfulness, in the maintenance of proper hygienic conditions.

But particularly interesting in Sir David Bruce's address, and somewhat uncommon also, is what he says about the use of inoculation in typhoid. Remarking that it is not always possible to maintain good hygienic surroundings, as, for example, among troops on active service, he goes on to say that it is therefore legitimate, under certain conditions, and especially in time of war, to practice a less sound, a less fundamental, method of prevention, and this second method is known as inoculation or vaccination.

But he does not mean by this to suggest any doubt as to the propriety of using such a method, or of its efficiency when used, but merely to make plain the fact that its use is only to be resorted to when the usual method of prevention fails. In this he is entirely correct. The inoculation method, which, speaking broadly, means that "you subject a man to a mild attack of the disease in order that his blood and tissues will respond to the stimulus by forming antibodies," does not render them less efficient in calling forth antibodies in normal strength.

WOMAN IN THE OFFICE

By Beatrice Fairfax

USUALLY when a man or woman, as the case may be, is called to the office, it is to do some work. It is to be a part of the business of the office, and to be a part of the success of the business. It is to be a part of the life of the office, and to be a part of the life of the man or woman who is in the office.

But when a man or woman is called to the office, it is not always to do some work. It is to be a part of the life of the office, and to be a part of the life of the man or woman who is in the office. It is to be a part of the success of the business, and to be a part of the success of the man or woman who is in the office.

And when a man or woman is called to the office, it is not always to do some work. It is to be a part of the life of the office, and to be a part of the life of the man or woman who is in the office. It is to be a part of the success of the business, and to be a part of the success of the man or woman who is in the office.

And when a man or woman is called to the office, it is not always to do some work. It is to be a part of the life of the office, and to be a part of the life of the man or woman who is in the office. It is to be a part of the success of the business, and to be a part of the success of the man or woman who is in the office.

And when a man or woman is called to the office, it is not always to do some work. It is to be a part of the life of the office, and to be a part of the life of the man or woman who is in the office. It is to be a part of the success of the business, and to be a part of the success of the man or woman who is in the office.

And when a man or woman is called to the office, it is not always to do some work. It is to be a part of the life of the office, and to be a part of the life of the man or woman who is in the office.
